NOTICE OF MOTION AND MOTION

TO PLAINTIFF JAMES ALAN BUSH, IN PRO PER:

PLEASE TAKE NOTICE that on September 22, 2008, at 9:00 a.m., or as soon thereafter as the matter may be heard in Courtroom 8 of the District Court of the Northern District of California, located at 280 South First Street, San Jose, CA 95113, before The Honorable James Ware, Defendants Cloudmark, Inc., Kim Moss, Jamie de Guerre, and Mike Smith ("Defendants"), will move for the dismissal of the above-entitled action pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6), or in the alternative, for an order for summary judgment pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 12(d) and 56, as to each claim pleaded in Plaintiff James Alan Bush's first, second, third and fourth causes of action, all based on the alleged violations of the California Fair Employment and Housing Act ("FEHA"); the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, 42 U.S.C. § 12112 ("ADA"); the Civil Rights Act of 1866, 42 U.S.C. § 1981; and the Civil Rights Act of 1871, 42 U.S.C. § 1983, § 1985, and § 1986.

Defendants will move for a dismissal of Plaintiff's action pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6) on the grounds that (1) Plaintiff is contractually barred from litigating any claims against Defendants with respect to his employment at Cloudmark, Inc.; (2) the statute of limitations with respect to Plaintiff's FEHA and ADA-based claims have expired; (3) Plaintiff has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies with respect to his FEHA and ADA-based claims and is now time-barred from doing so; and (4) Plaintiff has failed to state any claim upon which relief may be granted.

In the alternative, Defendants will move for a summary judgment of each cause of action asserted in Plaintiff's complaint pursuant to Rules 12(d) and 56, on the ground that there is no genuine issue of material fact and that Defendants are entitled to judgment in their favor as a matter of law, because: (1) Plaintiff is contractually barred from litigating any claims against Defendants with respect to his employment at Cloudmark, Inc.; (2) the statute of limitations with respect to Plaintiff's FEHA and ADA-based claims have expired; and (3) Plaintiff has failed to exhaust his administrative remedies with respect to his FEHA and ADA-based claims and is now time-barred from doing so.

1 This Motion is based on this Notice, the Memorandum of Points and Authorities set
 2 forth below, the Declaration of Kimberly Moss, the Request for Judicial Notice, any oral argument
 3 that may be heard, and all pleadings and papers on file in this action.

4 MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES

5 I. INTRODUCTION

6 Although less than clear, Plaintiff's complaint appears to be rooted in his contentions
 7 that Defendants discriminated against and harassed him, based on his medical status and sexual 8 orientation, as a consequence of which he was constructively discharged from his employment.
 9 Plaintiff also alleges that Defendants conspired, and negligently failed to prevent a conspiracy, to 10 deprive him of his civil rights. Plaintiff's claims suffer from several fatal flaws.

11 To begin with, Plaintiff's claims are time-barred. Plaintiff left employment with 12 Defendants nearly three years ago in March 2005. The statute of limitations for harassment and 13 discrimination, however, is one year. Thus, his claims expired in 2006. Plaintiff has also failed to 14 exhaust his administrative remedies with respect to the statutory claims, and the time has long since 15 run on his ability to do so. Exhaustion is, of course, a jurisdictional prerequisite for bringing such 16 claims. A review of the complaint also reveals that Plaintiff has failed to plead even the most basic 17 facts sufficient to establish any claim at all. While the complaint references certain statutes and 18 regulations (and quotes them at length), it utterly fails to plead any facts from which the Court or 19 Defendants can determine the exact nature of the harm alleged to have befallen him. Finally, all of 20 Plaintiff's claims ultimately fail for the separate, and independent reason that Plaintiff executed a
 21 Severance Agreement and General Release, releasing Defendants from any and all of the liability
 22 sought herein. Thus, whether the Court considers the General Release in the context of Defendants'
 23 Request for Judicial Notice under Rule 12(b), or considers it instead under Rules 12(d) and 56, the 24 release agreement bars all claims asserted (or which might be asserted) against Defendants.

25 In light of the foregoing, Defendants respectfully request that this Court dismiss
 26 Plaintiff's action in its entirety pursuant to Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rules 12(b)(1) and 27 12(b)(6). Alternatively, Defendants request that this Court grant them summary judgment pursuant 28 to Rules 12(d) and 56.

II. STATEMENT OF THE RELEVANT FACTS

Defendant Cloudmark, Inc. is a Delaware corporation duly authorized to conduct business in the State of California. (Judicial Notice, ¶¶ 1, 2.) Cloudmark is a private company and is not affiliated to any degree with local, state or federal governmental entities. (See Ibid.) Cloudmark provides comprehensive messaging security solutions that enable service providers to prevent messaging abuse from impacting their infrastructure, operations and subscribers.¹

Plaintiff is a Caucasian male who worked as a Technical Writer for Cloudmark. (Judicial Notice, ¶¶ 3, 4.) On March 15, 2005, Plaintiff resigned from his employment at Cloudmark. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4; Complaint, 10:10.) In conjunction with his resignation, Plaintiff entered into a Severance Agreement that included a release of all claims provision with respect to his employment at Cloudmark. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4).

Approximately three years later, on March 4, 2008, Plaintiff filed the pending civil complaint against Defendants in which he alleges, among other things, that he was discriminated against, harassed, and constructively discharged, based on his status as a clinically depressed homosexual who is infected with the Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome. (“AIDS.”) Significantly, Defendant’s complaint does not allege that prior to the filing of his pleading, he complied with the provisions of FEHA or the ADA by timely filing administrative complaints regarding Defendants’ alleged unlawful acts. (Complaint, passim).

III. LEGAL ARGUMENT

A. Relevant Legal Standard

Defendants bring this Motion pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and (b)(6) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.² A Rule 12(b)(6) motion tests the legal sufficiency of the claims stated in a civil complaint and authorizes the court to dismiss an action on the basis of a dispositive issue of law. See Qwest Communications Corp. v. City of Berkeley, 208 F.R.D. 288, 291 (N.D. Cal. 2002).

In entertaining a Rule 12(b)(6) motion, a court must determine whether the facts alleged by the plaintiff, if assumed to be true, would entitle that plaintiff to a legal remedy.

² Unless otherwise stated, all cited rules refer to the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure.

Dismissal of an action under Rule 12(b)(6) is proper “where there is either a ‘lack of a cognizable legal theory’ or ‘the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory.’” 9 Schwarzer, et. al., California Practice Guide: Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, § 9:187 (TRG 2007.) In ruling on such motion, a court is required to accept the plaintiff’s allegations as true and determine whether the plaintiff’s contentions, if proven, “establish a valid claim for relief.” Id. at 9:188. (Emphasis in the original.) A claim is defined as “a set of facts which, if established, entitle the pleader to relief.” Id. at § 9.188.1, citing Bell Atlantic Corp. v. Twombly 127 S. Ct. 1955, 1965 (2007) [Emphasis in the original].

A Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss is appropriate where the plaintiff has stated a claim that omits one or more key elements of a cause of action. 9 Schwarzer, et. al., California Practice Guide, supra, § 9:179. [“A motion to dismiss is often very effective where plaintiff has stated the claim in vague, conclusory terms without setting forth one or more key elements.”] Such motion is also proper where the plaintiff’s action is time-barred. See Jablon v. Dean Witter & Co., 614 F.2d 677, 682 (9th Cir. 1980.) In this regard, where the running of the statute cannot be determined on the face of the plaintiff’s complaint, the moving defendant may join a Rule 12(b) motion with a motion for summary judgment. Fed. R. Civ. Proc. Rules 12(d), 56. See Supermail Cargo, Inc. v. United States, 68 F.3d 1204, 1206 (9th Cir. 1995.) However, where a matter that is properly subject to judicial notice is considered in deciding a Rule 12(b) motion, that motion is not converted to a summary judgment motion. 9 Schwarzer, et. al., California Practice Guide: Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, § 9:212.15. Under Rule 56, a party is entitled to summary judgment if there is “no genuine issue as to any material fact and . . . the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law.” Fed. R. Civ. Proc. Rule 56(c).

B. Defendants’ Motion For Dismissal Under Rules 12(b)(1) And 12(b)(6) With Respect To The Claims Asserted In Plaintiff’s First, Second, Third, and Fourth Causes Of Action Must Be Granted, Since Plaintiff Is Contractually Barred From Asserting Any Claim Against Defendants With Respect To His Employment At Cloudmark

Defendants’ Rule 12(b) motion for dismissal must be granted as to each and every claim asserted by Plaintiff. This is so, because at the time Plaintiff ceased his professional relationship with Defendant Cloudmark, he executed a severance agreement that contains an

1 enforceable release of claims provision, including a waiver of all claims under Civil Code section
2 1542. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4).

3 In general, a written release extinguishes the obligations covered by its terms, and 4 extrinsic evidence is not admissible to modify the terms of an unambiguous release. Cal. Civ. Code
5 § 1541. ["An obligation is extinguished by a release therefrom given to the debtor by the creditor,
6 upon a new consideration, or in writing, with or without new consideration"]; Skrbina v. Fleming
7 Cos., 45 Cal. App. 4th 1353, 1366-67 (1996.) See, Shaw v. City of Sacramento, 250 F.3d 1289, 8 1293 (9th Cir. 2001.) ["Under California law, the language of a written contract governs its 9 interpretation so long as it is clear and explicit."] See Cal. Civ. Code § 1643. [A contract must 10 receive such a interpretation [sic] as will make it lawful, operative, definite, reasonable, and capable 11 of being carried into effect, if it can be done without violating the intention of the parties.]; Cal.
12 Civ. Code § 3541. ["An interpretation which gives effect is preferred to one which makes void"].

13 If a party has the capacity of reading and understanding the terms of a release, absent
14 fraud and imposition, that party is estopped from claiming that he did not intend to sign the release
15 or that the terms are contrary to his understanding. Skrbina, supra, 45 Cal. App. 4th at 1367.
16 Furthermore, when an employee accepts a severance payment and in exchange knowingly and 17 voluntarily signs a release of claims agreement with respect to his or her accrued claims, including 18 claims based on harassment and discrimination, and thereafter files a lawsuit against his or her 19 employer on the basis of the released claims, the employee's lawsuit is subject to dismissal. See id.
20 at 1366-67.³

21 In this case, on March 15, 2005, Plaintiff signed a document entitled Severance
22 Agreement And General Release Of All Claims. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) That Agreement sets forth
23 as follows in pertinent part:

24 2. For and in consideration of the commitments and promises
25 made herein, Employee does hereby completely release and forever
26 discharge the Company, its related entities, officers, directors, agents, employees, attorneys, successors and assigns from all claims, rights,

27 ³ Once an employer proves that an employee executed a release that covers the employee's claims, received sufficient
28 consideration, and thereafter breached the release, the burden of establishing that the release was not executed
"knowingly and voluntarily" due to fraud, duress, or any other defense, is exclusively on the employee. Smith v.
Amedisys Inc., 298 F.3d 434, 441 (5th Cir. 2002).

demands, actions, obligations, liabilities, and causes of action of any and every kind, nature and character whatsoever, known and unknown, whether based on a tort including but not limited to negligence or intentional tort, contract (implied, oral or written), statute, including but not limited any [sic] claim(s) arising under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Equal Pay Act of 1963, the Americans With Disabilities Act, the Civil Rights Act of 1866, the Family and Medical Leave Act, the Employee Retirement Income Security Act of 1974, the California Fair Employment and Housing Act, the California Family Rights Act, the California Labor Code or any other federal, state or local law or regulation which Employee may now have, has ever had, or may in the future have, arising from or in any way connected with Employee's employment by the Company, including but not limited to, Employees termination [sic] of employment.

* * * * *

4. Employee hereby agrees and promises that Employee will not file, at any time subsequent to the execution of this Severance Agreement and General Release of All Claims, in any state or federal court or before any state or federal administrative agency any claim or action, which Employee may now have, has ever had, or may in the future have, with respect to any matter pertaining to or arising from Employee's employment or termination of employment with the Company. In addition, Employee waives any and all rights or benefits which Employee may have under the terms of section 1542 of the California Civil Code, which is set forth as follows:

Section 1542: A general release does not extend to claims which the creditor does not know or suspect to exist in his favor at the time of executing the release, which if known by him must have materially affected Employee's settlement with the debtor.

5. It is understood and agreed that this is a full and final release covering all unknown and unanticipated injuries, debts, claims, or damages to Employee which may have arisen, or may arise, in connection with Employee's employment with the Company, as well as those injuries, debts, or damages now known or disclosed which may have arisen, or may arise, in connection with Employee's employment with the Company, as well as those injuries, debts, claims, or damages now known or disclosed which may have arisen, or may arise, from said employment or termination of employment, as described above.

As a Technical Writer, Plaintiff had sufficient capacity to understand the terms of the Severance Agreement he signed. In exchange for entering into the Severance Agreement, Plaintiff obtained a severance payment in the lump sum of $6,167.00 (See Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) As such, as a matter of law, Plaintiff is barred from bringing this action against Defendants. Therefore, this

1 Court should grant Defendants' Rule 12(b) motion with respect to each and every claim asserted or 2 potentially asserted in Plaintiff's complaint.

3 C. Alternatively, Plaintiff's First Cause of Action For Violations Of FEHA And The 4 ADA Must Be Dismissed With Prejudice, Because They Are Time-Barred, And 5 Because Plaintiff Failed To Exhaust His Administrative Remedies.

6 Because Plaintiff failed to file administrative complaints with the appropriate
7 governmental agencies concerning his FEHA and ADA-based claims, those claims are barred by the 8 applicable statute of limitations, as well as by Plaintiff's conspicuous failure to exhaust his 9 administrative remedies by filing administrative complaints. Since Plaintiff is now time-barred from 10 taking any corrective action in these regards, pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6), this Court
11 must dismiss, with prejudice, the claims in Plaintiff's first cause of action for violations of FEHA
12 and the ADA.

13 1. Plaintiff's Claims Under FEHA Are Time-Barred By The Applicable
14 Statute Of Limitations and Are Subject To Dismissal.

15 Plaintiff's claims of harassment, discrimination, and/or constructive discharge under 16 FEHA, as set forth in his first cause of action, are time-barred by the statute of limitations, because 17 on or prior to March 15, 2006, Plaintiff was required but failed to timely file an administrative 18 complaint with the DFEH regarding his grievances. See Cal. Gov. Code § 12960(d).

19 To plead a FEHA claim, an employee, generally within one year of the employer's 20 alleged wrongful conduct, is required to file an administrative complaint with the DFEH and obtain a 21 Notice of Right to File a Civil Action ("Notice of Right-To-Sue") or otherwise become eligible to 22 file a civil complaint. Cal. Gov. Code §§ 12960(d), 12965(b). Balloon v. Superior Court, 39 Cal.
23 App. 4th 1116, 1120 (1995.) ["The timely filing of an administrative complaint, and exhaustion of 24 that remedy, is a prerequisite to maintenance of a civil action for damages under the FEHA."] Once
25 the DFEH issues a Notice of Right-To-Sue to a plaintiff, that plaintiff has one year from the date of 26 the DFEH's Notice to file a civil complaint based on his or her FEHA claims. Cal. Gov. Code §
27 12965(b).⁴

28 ⁴ In rare circumstances not present herein, the statute of limitations is subject to equitable tolling. However, where, as here, a plaintiff's failure to timely prosecute his or her case is a result of his or her lack of due diligence, the statute of

1 In this case, Defendants' alleged wrongful conduct took place on or before March 15,
2 2005. (See Judicial Notice, ¶ 4; Complaint, 10:10.) As such, he had until March 15, 2006 to file an
3 administrative complaint with the DFEH. He failed to do so. (See Complaint, passim.) Therefore,
4 Plaintiff's FEHA claims are time-barred and subject to dismissal pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6).

5 2. Plaintiff's FEHA Claims Must Be Dismissed, Since He Failed To Exhaust
6 His Administrative Remedies And Is Now Time-Barred From Doing So.

7 Plaintiff's FEHA claims must be dismissed, since he failed to exhaust his 8 administrative remedies under FEHA and is now time-barred from rectifying this jurisdictional 9 defect.

10 As indicated in section III(C)(1) of this brief, prior to filing a civil complaint, a 11 plaintiff is required to exhaust his or her administrative remedies by filing a complaint with the 12 DFEH, generally within one year of the defendant's allegedly wrongful conduct. Cal. Gov. Code §§
13 12960, 12965(b.) In this case, Plaintiff utterly failed to file an administrative complaint at anytime
14 prior to filing his civil complaint. (See Complaint, Passim).

15 Under FEHA, the filing of an administrative complaint is a "jurisdictional 16 prerequisite to resort to the court." Johnson v. City of Loma Linda, 24 Cal. 4th 61, 70 (2000.) See, 17 also, Campbell v. Regents of Univ. of Calif., 35 Cal. 4th 311, 321 (2005.) Accord, Ohton v. Board of 18 Trustees of California State University, 148 Cal. App. 4th 749, 769 (2007.) As the California
19 Supreme Court explained over sixty years ago in Albelleria v. District Court of Appeal, 17 Cal. 2d 20 280, 293 (1941):

21 The rule . . . [requiring exhaustion of administrative remedies] is 22 settled with scarcely any conflict. It is not a matter of judicial 23 discretion, but is a fundamental rule of procedure laid down by courts
24 of last resort, followed under the doctrine of stare decisis, and binding 25 upon all courts Bearing in mind the analysis of jurisdiction which 26 has heretofore been made, and examining the authorities dealing with 27 the rule, we are necessarily led to the conclusion that exhaustion of the 28 administrative remedy is a jurisdictional prerequisite to resort to the 29 courts.

30 The time limit for filing an administrative complaint is strictly construed and not 31 subject to equitable tolling. Williams v. City of Belvedere, 72 Cal. App. 4th 84, 92-93 (1999.) A 32 limitations is not equitably tolled. See Scholar v. Pacific Bell, 963 F.2d 264, 268 (9th Cir. 1992).

plaintiff's failure to file an administrative complaint with the DFEH prior to filing a civil complaint is a valid ground for the dismissal of a civil complaint based on violations of FEHA. Okoli v. Lockheed Technical Operations Co., 36 Cal. App. 4th 1607, 1613 (1995).

As the record establishes, in this case, Plaintiff ceased his professional relationship with Defendants on March 15, 2005. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) Approximately three years later, on March 4, 2008, Plaintiff filed the instant civil complaint. Pursuant to Government Code sections 12960 and 12965(b), Plaintiff was required but failed to exhaust his administrative remedies by filing an administrative complaint on or before March 15, 2006. (See Complaint, passim; Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) In light of the fact that pursuant to Government Code sections 12960(d), 12965(b) Plaintiff cannot rectify this fatal flaw, Plaintiff's FEHA-based claims in his complaint, to wit, his claim of constructive discharge based on his alleged discrimination and/or harassment, must be dismissed with prejudice. In the alternative, summary judgment on these claims is appropriate.

3. Plaintiff's Claims Under The ADA Are Time-Barred By The Applicable Statute Of Limitations and Are Subject To Dismissal.

Plaintiff's claim of constructive discharge based on his alleged discrimination also appears to rely on the ADA. However, as with his FEHA claims, Plaintiff is barred by the applicable statute of limitations to assert his ADA claims against Defendants.

The ADA expressly incorporates the procedural requirements of Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Thus, prior to filing a civil complaint, where, as here, an aggrieved party has not filed an administrative complaint with the DFEH, he or she must, within 180 days of the employer's allegedly wrongful conduct, file a charge with the EEOC.⁵ 42 U.S.C. §§ 12117(a), 2000e-5(e)(1.) See, also, 16 Chin, et. al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, §16:47 (TRG 2007.) See, further, Santa Maria v. Pacific Bell, 202 F.3d 1170, 1176 (9th Cir. 2000).

In this case, Plaintiff resigned from his employment on March 15, 2005. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) Thus, he was required to file a charge with the EEOC within 180 days of that date. See Flaherty v. Metromail Corp. 235 F.3d 133, 138 (2nd Cir. 2000.) See, also, Scholar v. Pacific Bell, ⁵ If Plaintiff had initially filed an administrative complaint with the DFEH, which he has not, the 180 time-limit would have extended to 300 days. See 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(e)(1); and Chin, et. al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, §16:47 (TRG 2007).

1 963 F.2d 264, 268 (9th Cir. 1992), cert. denied, 506 U.S. 868 (1992.) [Holding that the plaintiff's
 2 Title VII action was foreclosed because it was filed 3 days after the expiration of the statute of 3 limitations.] He failed to do so. In fact, Plaintiff's complaint fails to plead any facts to indicate that 4 he filed his lawsuit within the statutory limitations period. (See Complaint, passim.) As such, his 5 ADA-based claims are time-barred as a matter of law.

6 4. Plaintiff's ADA Claims Must Be Dismissed, Because He Failed To 7 Exhaust His Administrative Remedies And Is Now Time-Barred From 8 Doing So.

9 In order to establish a court's subject matter jurisdiction over an ADA claim, a 10 plaintiff must exhaust his or her administrative remedies prior to filing suit. See B.K.B. v. Maui
 11 Police Dept., 276 F.3d 1091 (9th Cir. 2002), 1099. ["In order to establish subject matter jurisdiction 12 over her Title VII claim, Plaintiff was required to exhaust her administrative remedies."] See, also, 13 Foreman v. General Motors Corp., 473 F. Supp. 166, 177 (D. Mich. 1979) [Absent the timely
 14 exhaustion of administrative remedies, "the federal court has no jurisdiction over . . . (a) Title VII
 15 complaint."] (Emphasis added.). Accordingly, ADA actions cannot proceed in federal court absent a 16 plaintiff's filing of a charge of discrimination with the EEOC within 180 days of his or her 17 employer's alleged wrongful action (300 days in "deferral" states such as California where a plaintiff 18 initially files a claim with the DFEH.) 42 U.S.C. § 2000e-5(e)(1).

19 As indicated above, in this case Plaintiff did not, at anytime between his resignation
 20 date of March 15, 2005 and the date he filed his civil complaint, exhaust his administrative remedies
 21 by filing an administrative charge with the EEOC. (See Complaint, passim.) Therefore, this Court
 22 must dismiss with prejudice, pursuant to Rules 12(b)(1) and 12(b)(6), Plaintiff's ADA-based claims
 23 as set forth in his complaint. In the alternative, summary judgment under Rule 56 is appropriate for 24 this claim. See, Supermail Cargo, Inc. v. United States, 68 F.3d 1204, 1206 (9th Cir. 1995).

25 D. Alternatively, Plaintiff's Asserted Claims In His First Cause of Action For 26 Violations Of FEHA And The ADA Must Be Dismissed With Prejudice, Because 27 Plaintiff Has Failed To Sufficiently Plead The Essential Elements Of His Claims

28 Plaintiff's claims of discrimination and/or harassment, and constructive discharge as a result thereof, are based on his allegations that Defendants discriminated and/or harassed Plaintiff
 "on account of his medical condition . . . and, presumably, his sexual orientation, by fabricating an event by which the defendants could accuse the plaintiff of an act that violated company policy” (Complaint, page 9, ¶ 3); and by “discussing his HIV status amongst themselves and other employees.” (Id. at ¶ 4.) For the reasons discussed below, Plaintiff’s allegations are woefully inadequate to establish a claim of discrimination, harassment, or constructive discharge under FEHA or the ADA.

1. Plaintiff Has Failed to Allege Facts Sufficient to Establish That He Was Discriminated Against Within The Meaning Of FEHA Or That His Working Conditions Were So Intolerable As To Justify His Resignation.

In his complaint, Plaintiff appears to allege that Defendants discriminated against him, based on his alleged disabilities and his sexual orientation, as a result of which he was forced to quit his employment.

To sufficiently plead a prima facie case in unlawful discrimination, a plaintiff must establish that he or she (1) was a member of a protected class; (2) was otherwise qualified to perform his or her duties; (3) the employer subjected the plaintiff to an adverse employment action because of the plaintiff’s protected status; and (4) some other circumstance suggesting the employer’s discriminatory motive. See Faust v. California Portland Cement Co., 150 Cal. App. 4th 864 (2007), 886; King v. United Parcel Service, Inc., 152 Cal. App. 4th 426 (2007), 432; Horsford v. Board of Trustees of California State University, 132 Cal. App. 4th 359, 373 (2005); Guz v. Bechtel, 24 Cal. 4th 317, 355 (2000); Cal. Gov. Code § 12940(a). Additionally, the complaint must set forth that the plaintiff has exhausted the applicable administrative remedies. See Chin, et. al., California Practice Guide: Employment Litigation, §§ 7:25, 7:1011.

To be actionable, an “adverse employment action” within the meaning of FEHA must materially and detrimentally affect the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment, and result in termination, loss of pay or benefits, diminished responsibilities, or similar material consequences. See Crady v. Liberty Nat’l Bank & Trust Co., 993 F.2d 132, 136 (7th Cir. 1993.) [To maintain discrimination claim, a plaintiff must show “materially adverse change” in terms and conditions of employment, such as termination, loss of pay or benefits, diminished responsibilities, etc.] “Minor or relatively trivial adverse actions or conduct by employers or fellow employees that, from an objective perspective, are reasonably likely to do no more than anger or upset an employee cannot properly be viewed as materially affecting the terms, conditions, or privileges of employment and are not actionable.” Horsford, supra, 132 Cal. App. 4th at 373. (Emphasis added).

In the instant matter, Plaintiff has failed to plead sufficient factual information to establish a claim of discrimination. Specifically, with respect to his disability discrimination claim, Plaintiff has merely indicated that due to having contracted AIDS and/or being clinically depressed, Defendants wrongfully accused him of having violated a company policy and discussed his HIV+ status among themselves and others. Plaintiff’s allegations of sexual orientation discrimination are even more specious, since they are wholly based on Plaintiff’s hunch, rather than on Defendants’ conduct. (Complaint, page 9, ¶ 3 [“Defendant[s] . . . engaged in the following actions with the intent of harassing Plaintiff on account of his medical condition . . . and, presumably, his sexual orientation”(Emphasis added.)] There is absolutely no allegation that Defendants ostracized Plaintiff or made any derogatory comments concerning his sexual orientation or HIV+ status. (Complaint, passim.) See Bartalini v. Blockbuster Entertainment, Inc., 81 Fair Empl. Prac. Cas. (BNA) 792 (1999) [Court found that overt indicia of discriminatory animus was lacking where employer did not make homophobic remarks or comments, did not overtly discuss, comment on, or refer to the plaintiff’s sexual orientation, and did not even hint to any person that the plaintiff was terminated because he was gay].

Significantly, Plaintiff has failed to even allege any facts to show that he was demoted, transferred, or terminated by Defendants because of his allegedly protected status as a disabled or homosexual individual. (Complaint, passim.) Instead, Plaintiff has claimed that the conditions in which he worked were so intolerable that he was essentially forced to quit; that is, he was constructively terminated. (Complaint, page 10, ¶ 6.) In support of his claim that he was forced to quit his job due to the allegedly intolerable working conditions, Plaintiff repeats that Defendants discussed his HIV+ status amongst themselves and others, and wrongfully accused him of an act that violated a company policy. (Complaint, page 9, ¶¶ 3, 4.) These contentions are without merit, primarily for two reasons. Firstly, the law prohibits discriminating against an employee because of that employee’s protected status, not the mere discussion of an employee’s protected status. Secondly, as hereinafter explained, the fact that Plaintiff may have been

1 subjectively angered or hurt because Defendants allegedly accused him of having violated a
2 company policy is insufficient to justify his decision to quit and sue Defendants.

3 a. Plaintiff Cannot Establish A Constructive Discharge Claim

4 To establish a constructive discharge claim, a plaintiff must prove that his employer
5 intentionally or knowingly permitted working conditions, that viewed objectively, “were so 6 intolerable or aggravated . . . that a reasonable employer would realize that a reasonable person in 7 the employee’s position would be compelled to resign.” Garamendi v. Golden Eagle Ins. Co., 128
8 Cal. App. 4th 452, 472 (2005); Turner v. Anheuser-Busch, 7 Cal. 4th 1238, 1246, 1251 (1994.) As 9 clarified by the California Supreme Court in Turner:

10 [A]n employee cannot simply ‘quit and sue,’ claiming he or she was 11 constructively discharged. The conditions giving rise to the resignation 12 must be sufficiently extraordinary and egregious to overcome the 13 normal motivation of a competent, diligent, and reasonable employee
14 to remain on the job to earn a livelihood and to serve his or her 15 employer. The proper focus is on whether the resignation was 16 coerced, not whether it was simply one rational option for the 17 employee.

18 Turner, supra, 7 Cal. 4th 1238, 1246 (Emphasis added).

19 In pleading a constructive discharge claim, a plaintiff’s subjective reaction to his 20 working condition is irrelevant. The pertinent issue is the working conditions themselves. Gibson v.
21 Aro Corp., 32 Cal. App. 4th 1628, 1636-37 (1995.) A plaintiff “may not be unreasonably sensitive 22 to his working environment Every job has its frustrations, challenges, and disappointments.”
23 Turner, supra, 7 Cal. 4th at 1247. (Emphasis added.) A Plaintiff’s embarrassment or hurt feelings
24 does not transform his resignation into a constructive discharge. See Gibson, supra, 32 Cal. App.
25 4th at 1636. See, also, Fortner v. State of Kansas, 934 F. Supp. 1252, 1267-68 (1996), aff’d, 122
26 F.3d 40 (10th Cir. 1997.) [Reprimands and strained relationship do not constitute adverse action];
27 Soules v. Cadam, Inc., 2 Cal. App. 4th 390, 399-401 (1991), overruled on other grounds in Turner, 28 supra, 7 Cal. 4th at 1251. [As a matter of law, negative performance review, unfair criticism, and demotion do not create intolerable working conditions]; Lowell v. IBM, 955 F. Supp. 300, 305 n.3
(1997.) [Negative comments do not constitute adverse employment decision]; King v. AC & R
Advertising, 65 F.3d 764, 767 (9th Cir. 1995.) [Demotion in job level, even when accompanied by

1 reduction in pay, does not constitute constructive discharge].

2 In this case, Plaintiff has in essence pleaded that he was angered, frustrated, and hurt,
3 because Defendants discussed his HIV+ status among themselves and others and wrongfully accused
4 him of having violated a company policy, as a result of which he decided to quit and sue Defendants.
5 However, merely discussing an individual's disability is not unlawful. Moreover, although Plaintiff
6 may have been accused of having violated a company policy, Plaintiff fails to show that Defendants'
7 accusation in this regard was because of his status as a homosexual contracted with AIDS.
8 (Complaint, passim.) Moreover, Defendants' alleged accusation did not harm Plaintiff by resulting 9 in his being disciplined in any manner or suffering from any form of an adverse employment action.
10 In light of the fact that Plaintiff's decision to resign stemmed from his unreasonable sensitivity to his 11 working environment, he has failed to establish a valid claim for relief. See Gibson, supra, 32 Cal.
12 App. 4th at 1636; and Soules, supra, 2 Cal. App. 4th at 399-401. See, also, 9 Schwarzer, et. al., 13 California Practice Guide: Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, §9:188 (TRG 2007.) As such, 14 Plaintiff's action must be dismissed with prejudice. Alternatively, summary judgment against 15 Plaintiff should be granted.⁶

16 2. Plaintiff Cannot Establish A Prima Facie Claim In Hostile Environment 17 Harassment Under FEHA.

18 Plaintiff also appears to have pleaded a hostile environment harassment claim under 19 FEHA. To prevail on such claim, Plaintiff must establish that: (1) he belonged to a protected group; 20 (2) he was subjected to unwelcome harassment; (3) the harassment complained of was based on his 21 disability or sexual orientation; and (4) the harassment complained of was sufficiently pervasive so 22 as to alter the conditions of employment and create an abusive working environment. Fisher v. San
23 Pedro Peninsula Hospital 214 Cal.App.3d 590, 608 (1989); Hope v. California Youth Authority, 134

24 ⁶ Nor can Plaintiff plead a contractually-based cause of action in constructive discharge. This is so, because Plaintiff was 25 an at-will employee. See. Cal. Labor Code § 2922. ["An employment, having no specified term, may be terminated at 26 the will of either party on notice to the other"] Plaintiff's complaint fails to plead any allegations in contradiction to 27 his status as an at-will employee. (Complaint, passim. See, also, Judicial Notice, ¶ 4.) See Cal. Labor Code § 2922.
28 Claims of constructive discharge based on contract are inapplicable to at-will employees. Starzynski v. Capital Public Radio, 88 Cal. App. 4th 33, 41 (2001.) "[A]n at-will employee has no contractual claim for wrongful discharge based on constructive discharge on account of intolerable working conditions." Even assuming otherwise, for the reasons discussed in sections III(B) and III(D)(1) of this brief, Plaintiff cannot establish a contractually-based constructive discharge cause of action.

1 Cal.App.4th 577, 588 (2005).

2 The California Fair Employment and Housing Commission categorizes “harassment”
3 into four distinct groups, as follows: (1) verbal harassment, such as epithets, derogatory comments
4 or slurs; (2) physical harassment, such as touching, or assault and physical interference with 5 movement; (3) visual harassment, such as offensive posters, lewd gestures, or leering; and (4)
6 sexual favors, such as unwelcome sexual advances. 2 Cal.Code Regs. § 7287.6(b).

7 To prove that the alleged harassment is sufficiently severe and pervasive, a plaintiff
8 must establish that a reasonable person would consider the alleged harasser’s conduct, based on the 9 totality of the circumstances, to be so severe and pervasive as to alter the terms and conditions of his 10 employment. Harris v. Forklift Sys., 510 U.S. 17, 22-23 (1993); Fuller v. City of Oakland, 47 F.3d 11 1522, 1527 (9th Cir. 1995.) Courts consider the frequency of the conduct, the severity of the 12 conduct, whether the conduct was physically threatening or humiliating or a mere offensive 13 utterance, and whether the conduct unreasonably interfered with an employee’s work performance.
14 Harris, supra, 510 U.S. at 22-23. California courts have uniformly applied the Harris standard 15 when evaluating harassment claims. See, e.g., Beyda v. City of Los Angeles, 65 Cal. App. 4th 511,
16 517 (1998.) [Workplace must be “permeated with discriminatory intimidation, ridicule and insult
17 that is sufficiently severe or pervasive to alter the conditions of the victim’s employment and create 18 an abusive working environment.”] See, also, Fisher v. San Pedro Peninsula Hospital, 214 Cal.
19 App. 3d 590 (1989), 611-12. [“Acts of harassment cannot be occasional, isolated, sporadic, or 20 trivial, rather the plaintiff must show a concerted pattern of harassment of a repeated, routine or 21 generalized nature.”].

22 Plaintiff’s harassment claim in this case is unfounded, since as evident on the face of 23 his complaint, no harassment within the meaning of FEHA even occurred: there is a conspicuous
24 dearth of any verbal, physical, or visual harassment, and no offers of sexual favors were at anytime
25 claimed to have been advanced to Plaintiff. (Complaint, passim.) As such, as a matter of law,
26 Plaintiff was not harassed. See 2 Cal.Code Regs. § 7287.6(b.) In any event, as discussed in section
27 III (C)(1) of this brief, a reasonable person would not have considered it unlawfully harassing for 28 Defendants to discuss Plaintiff’s HIV+ status among themselves or others, or to be issued

Defendant's isolated and un-reprimanded accusation that Plaintiff had violated a company policy. Nor can, in light of the foregoing authorities, Defendants' alleged conduct in these regards be considered severe or pervasive by any stretch of the imagination. Plaintiff's claim of unlawful harassment is unmeritorious.⁷

3. Plaintiff Has Failed to Allege Facts Sufficient to Establish that He Was Discriminated Against Within The Meaning Of The ADA Or That His Working Conditions Were So Intolerable As To Justify His Resignation

The ADA prohibits an employer from discriminating against an employee who is suffering from a disability on the basis of the employee's disability, with respect to "job application procedures, the hiring, advancement, or discharge of employees, employee compensation, job training, and other terms, conditions, and privileges of employment." 42 U.S.C. § 12112(a).

To establish a claim under section 12112, a plaintiff must prove that he or she: (1) has a disability; (2) is a qualified individual capable of performing the essential functions of his or her duties with or without reasonable accommodation; and (3) the employer unlawfully discriminated against the plaintiff because of his or her disability. Kennedy v. Applause, Inc. 90 F.3d 1477, 1481, (9th Cir. 1996).

For the reasons discussed in section III(D)(1) of this brief, Plaintiff has failed to established the third element of his prima facie case under the ADA.⁸

E. Alternatively, Plaintiff's Claims Of Neglect To Prevent Conspiracy To Deprive Him Of Civil Rights Must Be Dismissed For Lack Of Standing

The United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit has ruled that where a complaint reveals on its face that the plaintiff lacks standing, dismissal under Rule 12(b)(6) is proper. Sacks v. Office of Foreign Assets Control, 466 F.3d 764, 771 (9th Circ. 2006.) In this case, Plaintiff's 42 U.S.C. section 1981 claims must be dismissed pursuant to Rule 12(b)(6) because Plaintiff cannot establish that he is a member of a protected class within the meaning of 42 U.S.C.

⁷ A plaintiff is not required to establish a loss of tangible job benefits when pleading harassment under Government Code section 12940(j)(1.) Regardless, in this case Plaintiff cannot establish that he was harassed, since as previously stated, as a matter of law, Defendants' actions did not constitute unlawful harassment.

⁸ Additionally, as indicated in section III(C) of this brief, as an essential element of his prima facie case, in his complaint Plaintiff was required but failed to set forth that prior to filing suit he exhausted his administrative remedies with respect to his FEHA and ADA-based claims. (See Complaint, passim).

1 section 1981.

2 42 U.S.C. section 1981 sets forth as follows in pertinent part:

3 All persons within the jurisdiction of the United States shall have the 4 same right in every State and Territory to make and enforce contracts,
5 to sue, be parties, give evidence, and to the full and equal benefit of all 6 laws and proceedings for the security of persons and property as is 7 enjoyed by white citizens, and shall be subject to like punishment,
8 pains, penalties, taxes, licenses, and exactions of every kind, and to no 9 other.

10 42 U.S.C. § 1981. (Emphasis added).

11 As apparent on the face of 42 U.S.C. section 1981, the purpose of this section is to 12 prohibit racial discrimination and is “intended to uproot the institution of slavery and to eradicate its 13 badges and incidents.” Dawson v. Pastrick, 441 F. Supp. 133, 141 (1977) [Citations omitted].

14 In this case, Plaintiff is Caucasian. (Judicial Notice, ¶ 3.) Viewed in the light most 15 favorable to him, Plaintiff’s complaint alleges that he was harassed and/or discriminated against 16 based on his sexual orientation and his disabilities of having AIDS and being clinically depressed.
17 There is no indication whatsoever that Plaintiff was discriminated against based on his race.

18 It is well established, that claims rooted in sexual orientation or claims of 19 discrimination other than those based on race are not cognizable under 42 U.S.C. section 1981.
20 Anjelino v. New York Times Co., 200 F.3d 73, 98 (3d Cir. 1999) [“Because . . . (42 U.S.C.S. 1981), 21 on its face, is limited to issues of racial discrimination in the making and enforcing of contracts,
22 courts have concluded that sex-based claims are not cognizable under 42 U.S.C. § 1981]; Olson v.
23 Rembrandt Printing Co., 375 F. Supp. 413, 417 (D. Mo. 1974.) [“[T]he absence of an allegation of 24 racial discrimination such as in the instant case is fatal to a cause of action brought under 42 U.S.C.
25 § 1981 because the applicability of that section is clearly limited to racial discrimination”]
(Emphasis added); and Foreman v. General Motors Corp., 473 F. Supp. 166, 177 (D. Mich. 1979.)
[“ . . . (42 U.S.C.S. 1981) has been construed as proscribing racial discrimination and only racial discrimination”].

26 In light of Plaintiff’s lack of standing and the fact that Plaintiff is a Caucasian male, 27 and because he cannot rectify his standing defect by amending his pleading, Plaintiff’s claims under 28 42 U.S.C. section 1981 must be dismissed with prejudice.

F. Alternatively, Plaintiff's Claims Under 42 U.S.C. Section 1983 Must Be Dismissed Because Defendants Are Private Parties And Not Affiliated To Any Governmental Entities

Plaintiff appears to have also based his claims under 42 U.S.C. section 1983. (Complaint, 8:10-11.) That section provides as follows:

Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State or Territory or the District of Columbia, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured in an action at law, suit in equity, or other proper proceeding for redress, except that in any action brought against a judicial officer for an act or omission taken in such officer's judicial capacity, injunctive relief shall not be granted unless a declaratory decree was violated or declaratory relief was unavailable. For the purposes of this section, any Act of Congress applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia shall be considered to be a statute of the District of Columbia.

42 U.S.C. § 1983.

42 U.S.C. section 1983 was enacted "to deter state actors from using the badge of their authority to deprive individuals of their federally guaranteed rights" Wyatt v. Cole, 504 U.S. 158, 161 (1992.) Section 1983 does not create any substantive rights, but merely provides a remedy to those who have been deprived of rights secured by the Constitution or laws of the United States. Foster v. Wyrick, 823 F.2d 218, 221 (8th Cir. 1987).

To bring a claim under section 1983, Plaintiff must establish, among other things, that Defendants were acting "under color of state law." West v. Atkins, 487 U.S. 42, 48 (1988.) This, Plaintiff cannot do, since Defendant Cloudmark is a private corporation and the other named Defendants are private individuals. (See Judicial Notice, ¶¶ 1, 2.) This fact is even acknowledged in Plaintiff's complaint. (Complaint, 7:13-13; 8:10-11.)⁹ See Foreman v. General Motors Corp., 473 F. Supp. 166, 178 (D. Mich. 1979.) ["How it is possible for private employers to act "'under color of law'" is a mystery to this Court."] In light of this crucial evidence, Plaintiff's claims under 42 U.S.C. section 1983 must be dismissed with prejudice for failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted.

⁹ Plaintiff's complaint sets forth as follows in this regard: "Defendant, Cloudmark, is and was covered by FEHA as a private employer . . ."; "All other Defendants named herein are being sued . . . as private individuals".

G. Alternatively, Plaintiff's Second, Third, And Fourth Causes Of Action Based On The Alleged Violations Of 42 U.S.C. Sections 1985 And 1986 Must Be Dismissed Because Plaintiff Lacks Standing

Plaintiff's remaining causes of action, allegedly "pleaded" under 42 U.S.C. sections 1985 and 1986, must be dismissed with prejudice for lack of standing. This is so, because Plaintiff is Caucasian and not a member of a protected class under section 1985 and has only pleaded harassment and/or discrimination based on sexual orientation and his disabilities as a result of having contracted AIDS and being clinically depressed.

42 U.S.C. sections 1985(2) and (3) were passed by Congress shortly after the Civil War, in order to combat the bias that existed against African Americans and their supporters. United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners v. Scott, 463 U.S. 825, 836 (1983.) Section 1985(2) prohibits persons from obstructing justice by intimidating parties, witnesses or jurors; section 1985(3) prohibits persons from depriving others of the equal protection or equal privileges and immunities under the laws.¹⁰

42 U.S.C. section 1986 is entirely dependent upon section 1985 and is only at issue if a cause of action under section 1985 is established. "If a claim cognizable under § 1985 is not stated there is no recovery possible under § 1986." Foreman v. General Motors Corp., 473 F. Supp. 166, 178 (D. Mich. 1979).

42 U.S.C. section 1985 prohibits race-based or other invidiously based discriminatory animus. Neither sexual preference nor disability status is protected under that section. See Gay Veterans Asso. v. American Legion-New York County Organizations, 621 F. Supp. 1510, 1515-16 (1985); David v. Local 801, Danbury Fire Fighters Ass'n, 899 F. Supp. 78, 80 (1995).

1. Plaintiff's Second, Third, And Fourth Causes Of Action Under 42 U.S.C. Sections 1985 And 1986 Must Be Dismissed With Prejudice Because Plaintiff Has Failed To Plead The Essential Elements Of His Prima Facie Case.

Plaintiff's 42 U.S.C. sections 1985 and 1986 claims are also subject to dismissal because, as conspicuously apparent on the face of his complaint, Plaintiff has failed to plead the essential elements of his claims and cannot rectify this flaw by way of an amendment, since he is not a protected class member under section 1985. (See Judicial Notice, ¶ 3; Complaint, passim).

Specifically, in support of his 42 U.S.C. sections 1985 and 1986 claims, Plaintiff has only alleged the following: “(For Violations of Title 42 U.S.C. §§ 1985, 1986) [RESERVED].” (Complaint, 11:11-13.) This allegation is clearly insufficient to establish a prima facie case under either section 1985 or section 1986.

To establish a cause of action under 42 U.S.C. 1985(3), in addition to a claim of class-based animus, a plaintiff must allege: “(1) a conspiracy, (2) for the purpose of depriving another of the ‘equal protection of the laws, or of equal privileges and immunities under the laws;’ (3) an act in furtherance of the conspiracy; and (4) an injury to a person or property, or the deprivation of a legal right.” Federer v. Gephardt, 363 F.3d 754, 757-58 (8th Cir. 2004.) In this case, as evident on the face of the complaint, Plaintiff has failed to plead the material elements required to establish a section 1985 cause of action. As such, and in light of the fact that relief under section 1986 is wholly dependent upon the validity of a section 1985 claim, Plaintiffs’ second, third, and fourth causes of action based on 42 U.S.C. sections 1985 and 1986 must be dismissed for his failure to state a claim upon which relief may be granted. See 9 Schwarzer, et. al., California Practice Guide: Federal Civil Procedure Before Trial, §9:179.

IV. CONCLUSION

In light of the foregoing, Defendants Cloudmark, Inc. Kim Moss, Jamie de Guerre, and Mike Smith respectfully request that this Court dismiss with prejudice Plaintiff James Alan Bush’s civil action against Defendants. Alternatively, Defendants request that this Court enter a summary judgment in their favor.
